

SENATORIAL VISIT WILL NOT BRING THE LEADERS

(Special to the Advertiser.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 23.—A delegation of United States Senators will probably visit Hawaii this summer. The Committee on Pacific Islands and Porto Rico at its weekly meeting this morning voted to report favorably the resolution, recently introduced by Senator Mitchell of Oregon, providing that a subcommittee proceed to Hawaii and investigate numerous pending questions of legislation, including the Queen's title, equitable or legal, to compensation for lands. It is believed the Senate will pass the resolution before adjournment. The expenses of the party will be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate. The resolution reported from the committee today does not specify the number of the subcommittee.

People in Hawaii, while glad to welcome any visitors from the United States Senate, will nevertheless regret that there is no prospect of the more influential Senators of the Pacific Islands Committee going on the trip, and that it is apt to develop largely into a pleasure jaunt for a few men. There will be one possible exception, for Senator Cockrell of Missouri may find time to go to Hawaii. He is an influential Democrat, and would be able to gather impressions regarding questions of legislation that the Senate would respect.

Senator Foraker, the chairman, is too busy to get away. Senator Dewey of New York, another member of the committee, is in Europe; Senator Mitchell of Oregon, Senator Blackburn of Kentucky, and Senator Wetmore of Rhode Island, are all unable to take the long journey. Senator Burton of Kansas, a new Republican Senator, is anxious to take the jaunt. He has lost caste with his party in Kansas and also here in Washington during his brief service, has quarreled with the President and gotten into a muddle generally. Senator Foster of Washington State and Senator Mallory of Florida may be able to make the trip. These four are among the most probable selections.

The Committee on Pacific Islands and Porto Rico this morning voted again to defer action on the Hawaiian Ditch Bill. As the committee will probably have but one more meeting this session, it looks as though they intend to pigeon-hole the measure.

The fire claims bill was discussed in the committee this morning. It was agreed that Senator Foraker should go before the Senate appropriation committee and urge the appropriation of $1,000,000 in the general deficiency bill. The Senate appropriations committee will give him a hearing before tomorrow evening.

EDWARD VII STRICKEN

tion at the palace, but the moment the "fiskers" announced his majesty's illness all the preparations for the day ceased.

The best informed opinion places the date of the coronation in about three months' time, provided King Edward progresses well in the meantime.

In spite of the royal wish that the provincial celebrations be carried out as arranged, many towns have abandoned the festivities which were to be held, although at Liverpool and other large cities hurried meetings were called and it was decided to carry out all the charitable arrangements as previously made. The leading business houses of London have decided to keep open June 28th and 27th, although the banks will probably be closed those days.

Portsmouth is perhaps the keenest sufferer among all who lose financially as a result of the postponement of the coronation. The harbor Portsmouth expected to reap from the naval review will now be lost to the city.

The bonfires which top the hills of the United Kingdom from John O'Grady's to Land's End will not be lighted. They will be kept intact, however, in the hope of the celebration being held at a later date.

QUEEN BEARS THE STRAIN BRAVELY

LONDON, June 24.—Queen Alexandra has borne the strain of the past week with the bravest spirit. She was always fearful of what might happen. Her majesty took her part in the festivities at Ascot and elsewhere without revealing any of her inward anxiety, and when she was told today that an operation was imperative and that the coronation would have to be postponed, she quietly answered:

"Have I not felt that this would happen?" and asked, "How does the King hear it?"

Upon receiving an assuring reply, Queen Alexandra exerted herself to appear cheerful and to devise means to lessen the King's grief and disappointment, although she was evidently greatly distressed.

The idea was mooted in some influential quarters today that with a view of preventing the disappointment of the public Queen Alexandra should be crowned alone next Thursday and the King should be crowned in a comparatively private manner upon his recovery. This idea was discussed, but it was rejected as a procedure calculated to mislead the public mind as to the purely relative importance of the Queen consort.

The Pope and the King of Italy and other monarchs have cabled anxious inquiries concerning King Edward's progress, and dispatches received from all parts of the world reflect the intensity of feeling occasioned by the unexpected news of his majesty's illness, and sympathy with the British nation.

SCENE IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

LONDON, June 24.—The House of Commons was crowded today by members and others who were anxious to hear the expected statement of the Government leader, A. J. Balfour, on the subject of the King's illness. Balfour said he had intense gratification in saying that a successful operation had been performed on the King and that his majesty was progressing as well as possible.

"That announcement," proceeded Balfour, "removes a great load off our minds. My first inclination on hearing the melancholy news this morning was to suggest that the House mark its sense of the disaster which has befallen the whole community by adjourning. But, on more careful reflection, I have come to the conclusion that such a course is ill advised. The anxiety we feel must be great, and that anxiety is necessarily augmented by the circumstances under which the disaster has befallen the royal family and the whole country. If I have come to the conclusion that if the House was to take the exceptional course to which I have adverted, that which is now anxiety in the public mind might become a panic, and a wholly exaggerated idea of the present state of things might go abroad.

"The status of things is undoubtedly grave, but we ought not to use stronger epithets in regard to it than those I have used, and I am convinced that if we were to consider the King's condition to be such that it would be improper to carry on the business of the country, we should produce a wholly false impression. In these circumstances, we do not propose to suggest any exceptional course, and I am thankful to have been able to inform the House that so far as we know at present, everything is going on as well as can possibly be expected."

The Liberal leader, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, expressed his entire approval of the course taken by Mr. Balfour, and the House resumed its ordinary business.

MEDICAL OPINION OF KING'S ILLNESS

NEW YORK, June 23.—The following special cable was today received by the New York Medical Journal from its London correspondent, whom they consider the highest medical authority in Great Britain and who is in intimate touch with everything that transpires at the bedside of the King:

"LONDON, June 23.—The King's disease is perityphlitis, following cold contracted nine days previously. His symptoms became rather acute a week ago, but had subsided, and it was hoped that he would go through the coronation ceremony. Owing to a sudden exacerbation early Tuesday morning an operation was decided upon at 10 o'clock, and the operation was performed at noon on Tuesday by Sir Frederick Treves, the anesthetic being administered by Dr. Frederick Hewitt. The abscess was opened around the caecum, the pus evacuated and the cavity drained. There was no reaction of the bowel, the newspaper reports that tubing was required to preserve the continuity of the intestine being entirely misleading. The recovery from anesthesia was satisfactory; the patient passed a restless night, succeeded by improvement.

DEPARTURE OF AMERICAN EMBASSY

LONDON, June 24.—Mr. and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, after the services at St. Paul's today, were entertained at luncheon at the residence of Lord Lansdowne, the Foreign Secretary, when Mr. Reid formally took his leave as special ambassador. The only remaining formality is his official leave-taking of the Prince of Wales, which will probably be arranged for tomorrow. Thereafter the American special embassy will dissolve, Mr. and Mrs. Reid and General James H. Wilson, who was to have represented the Army of the United States at the coronation, and Mrs. Wilson going to the Continent, and the other members of Mr. Reid's suite scattering. They will return later to London in their private capacity.

PRAYERS FOR KING AT ST. PAUL'S

LONDON, June 24.—At the hour when the King should have been crowned, a great and distinguished gathering, almost identical with that which would have sat in Westminster Abbey, gathered in St. Paul's Cathedral. The approaches were lined by silent throngs, through which drove peers and peeresses, colonial premiers, foreign envoys, ambassadors and members of the House of Commons, all in somber clothes. In the chancel were Joseph H. Choate, the United States Ambassador, and Mrs. Choate; Henry White, secretary of the embassy, and Mrs. White; Whitelaw Reid, the special ambassador of the United States to the coronation, and Mrs. Reid; Mr. and Mrs. J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr., and the leading members of the nobility. President Roosevelt's sisters, Mrs. Douglas Robinson and Mrs. W. S. Cowles, accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Reid to St. Paul's, and the members of this small party were given the most prominent places in the cathedral. In the nave about a thousand of the Westminster Abbey ticket-holders, mainly women, were seated.

As 2 o'clock struck there arose from the far end of the nave the clear notes of the opening sentences of the Litany, chanted by four of the Cathedral clergy. Their tones were in such unison that they seemed to emanate from one powerful voice. The choir took up the responses. At each supplication the procession, with the cross at its head, advanced a few steps and then stood still until the response was completed. Through the kneeling congregation the choir advanced to the chancel steps. A score of the clergy followed, and behind them were ten bishops in gorgeous robes. Then came the Most Rev. William Dalrymple MacLagan, the Archbishop of Yorktown; the Most Rev. Frederick Temple, the Archbishop of Canterbury; and the Lord Mayor, Sir Joseph Dimsdale. The procession in full state dress bringing up the rear.

With much feeling the choir sang the three psalms of intercession, after which the Right Rev. Cosmo Gordon Lang, Bishop of Stepney, read the lesson, Isaiah xxxviii. "I said in the cutting off of my days, I shall go to the gates of the grave, I am deprived of the residue of my years."

The Right Rev. Arthur F. W. Ingram, Bishop of London, from the altar steps, read the prayer: "O Lord, save the King." His voice rang to the furthest recess of the dome and brought a whole-hearted response from the choir and the congregation.

The anthem and the singing of the hymn "Thine arm, O Lord, in days of old was strong to heal and save," and Psalm LI concluded the service, whereupon the Bishop of London, surrounded by the archbishops and bishops, from the altar steps, impressively pronounced the benediction.

For a few moments complete silence reigned and all heads were bowed in prayer, after which the almost blind Archbishop of Canterbury was carefully led down the steps, the procession reformed and the congregation went into the sunlight, gladly discussing the wording of the latest bulletin from Buckingham Palace.

Simultaneously a similar service was conducted at St. Margaret's Church, Westminster. It was largely attended by Cabinet Ministers, peers and members of the House of Commons, and was concluded with singing "God Save the King."

From India, Australia and Africa, everywhere where Britons congregated, telegrams announce the holding of impressive supplicatory services.

OPINIONS OF DEPEW AND KEENE

NEW YORK, June 23.—Senator Dewey, who has followed the history of King Edward's case very carefully, does not entertain the most optimistic view of the outcome, cables the London correspondent of the Herald.

"If you will notice the bulletins that have been issued," said the senator, "you will see that they have all been worded with the utmost care. To anyone reading between the lines it is apparent that those in charge of the case are not at all sanguine as to the king's recovery. This convinces me that the royal patient's condition is far more serious than people in general appreciate."

James R. Keene would express no opinion on the chances of the king's recovery.

"Whatever the result may be," he said, "it will not affect values in America. If the king should die, his son, the Prince of Wales, would be proclaimed within fifteen minutes. The government would go on as usual."

"The present monarch is greatly admired and esteemed in America. On many occasions he has shown himself to be the friend of American and Americans. Americans he has always treated kindly. I think there would be much genuine sorrow among them in the event of a fatal termination of his illness. Still, in my opinion, values would not be affected in London."

Dysentery causes the death of more people than smallpox and yellow fever combined. In an army it is dreaded more than a battle. It requires prompt and effective treatment. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has been used in nine epidemics of dysentery in the United States with perfect success, and has cured the most malignant cases both of children and adults, and under the most trying conditions. Every household should have a bottle at hand. Get it today. It may save a life. Benson, Smith & Co., Ltd., wholesale agents, sell it.
